Are you the President, CFO or Purchasing Director of your company? If so, let me explain to you how to save some money.

Are you gambling on your uniform program?

Ask yourself :

- What does it cost you to put out a competitive bid every time you purchase a product? That would include:
 - Researching prospective vendors
 - Choosing a reliable vendor
 - Choosing a competitive vendor
 - Cost of establishing the parameters of a bid, producing the bid document and distribution of the document

Consider:

- How much time do you spend on the purchasing process? – and remember that time translates into dollars spent:
 - Comparing prices, delivery, quality of products
 - Purchasing directors' and department heads' approval for every single purchase
 - Producing and creating a purchase order
 - Continually adding vendors to your database
 - Continually adding new product codes to your database

Achieve Perspective:

- Are uniforms your priority business?
- Shouldn't your concentrated effort be on items that make you dollars?
- Avoid the hidden costs of buying uniforms – it's not the cost of the uniform per se, but the material cost of managing the purchase that needs rethinking.
